Hospital gives man sex change — BY MISTAKE

...and he loves it!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

Hector Rebazo checked into a hospital for prostate surgery — and boneheaded doctors gave him a sex change by mistake!

But, incredibly, the 30-year-old welder says he's glad he's become a woman and has no regrets over his surprise surgery.

"I would never have believed it before, but being a woman has terrific advantages," said Rebazo, now a curvy 5-foot-10 femme named Olivia.

"Guys open doors for me, carry my packages and treat me with respect. When I go out at night I never have to pay my own way. And I get to wear the loveliest fashions."

Rebazo, a bachelor, was diagnosed with prostate blockage in 1991 and scheduled for an operation at the city hospital in Caracas, Venezuela, where he lives.

But when he was wheeled into the operating room, doctors confused him with a young man who was due for sex change surgery. Four hours later, Rebazo had had his genitalia changed from male to female and had received breast implants.

When he woke up following his operation, Rebazo discovered what had happened and threw a fit. But as the weeks passed, he discovered there was much to be said for femininity.

"I got used to my new body and I found out I liked it," the bleached blonde transsexual says. "I didn't have to shave anymore. My skin got all soft and smooth feeling. I began to realize that I never felt stupid anymore. Women aren't expected to know anything, so I can be a dumb broad and it's okay.

"And I learned I didn't have to take charge in every situation. I could just sit back and let other people take care of me."

The advantages of womanhood were so great that within

New study gives America something to yawn about

Yawning: Everyone does it but no one knows exactly why — including Professor Robert Provine of the University of Maryland, who has researched the subject for more than 10 years trying to find the answer!

But in his studies, involving more than 1,000 people, Prof. Provine has learned this much:

- The average yawn lasts about six seconds.
- People tend to yawn when they're tired, anxious or bored. The second most common hour is the one just before sleep.
- It's contagious. People get the urge to yawn from just seeing pictures of open mouths.

MOM, 32, HASN'T AGED — SINCE SHE WAS 7 YEARS OLD!

TINY mom Sue McKenzie, left, and daughter Gabrielle, 7, during an appearance on a Japanese TV show.

Pint-size Sue McKenzie has three lovely children and works full-time as an executive secretary — but she looks like a little girl who never grew up.

By SCOTTY PAUL
Correspondent

The incredible child-like 32-year-old mini-mom suffers from an extremely rare gland disease that ground her growing to a halt at the tender age of 7.

She stands only 46 inches in her stocking feet, weighs 94 pounds and is smaller than her 14-year old son and her 9-year-old daughter.

"People think I'm with my brother and sisters when we go out," Sue said. "I'm so sick of people asking us where our mother is, I could scream.

"I've been picked up as a suspected runaway three times, stopped by cops while driving dozens of times, and denied a cocktail so often I don't bother to order one anymore.

"Just yesterday, an old lady walked up to me at the mall and wanted to know why I wasn't in school."

The pixie-like mom was perfectly normal until the age of 7, when her pituitary gland ceased to function and she stopped growing.

Although doctors tried various hormones to stimulate her development, nothing worked — and Sue became forever an adult in a child's body.

The perky mother had all three of her kids by cesarean section because she was too small to deliver them normally.

She has been a single parent living near Orlando, Fla., since divorcing her husband three years ago. Fortunately, the kids haven't inherited their mom's bizarre growth disease.

"Raising the children was hard because I wasn't strong enough to lift them, but we've survived," she said. "Actually, there are several cheaper, my shoes cost a fraction of what an average-size woman pays.

"I get in the movies, Disney World and most other attrations for children's prices.

"I'd like to marry again someday, but it takes a special guy to like a babydoll like me."

Hospital dumps coffins in cancer patients' rooms

Expert's shocking revelation:

EARTH'S WATER SUPPLY CAME FROM DINOSAUR WEE-WEE

Dr. Milton R. Grillingham

A pit stop by just one of these huge beasts would fill a swimming pool!

Every drop of water on Earth used to be urine — and 99.9 percent of it was once dinosaur pee-pee!

That's the fascinating finding of U.S. researcher Dr. Milton R. Grillingham, who says animals have drunk and fouled our water supply since life began.

By LAUREL BOWIE
Special correspondent

"There's just no getting around it — every drop of water you drink has been drunk before and passed as urine," the New York City scientist told reporters. "And the overwhelming majority of water on the planet has passed through one of the dinosaurs that roamed the Earth millions of years ago.

"When you realize that one pit stop by a brontosaurus could take 50 minutes and fill a small, in-ground swimming pool, that's not too hard to understand."

Dr. Grillingham's research confirms the findings of South African researcher Dr. Robert Johns, who used complex mathematical formulas and computer models to determine that all our water has been drunk before — and that most of it has been drunk many times.

"The dinosaurs did most of the damage early on, but now humans are certainly fouling up their fair share," the Cape Town researcher stated. "The average human being produces one gallon of urine a day and with five billion people on this planet, that can really add up.

"The bottom line is that our water isn't as pure as we like to think."

But Dr. Grillingham says that doesn't mean it's not safe to drink.

"People in more backward countries might have reason to worry, but in this country our water supply is tested regularly and for the most part has been found safe —

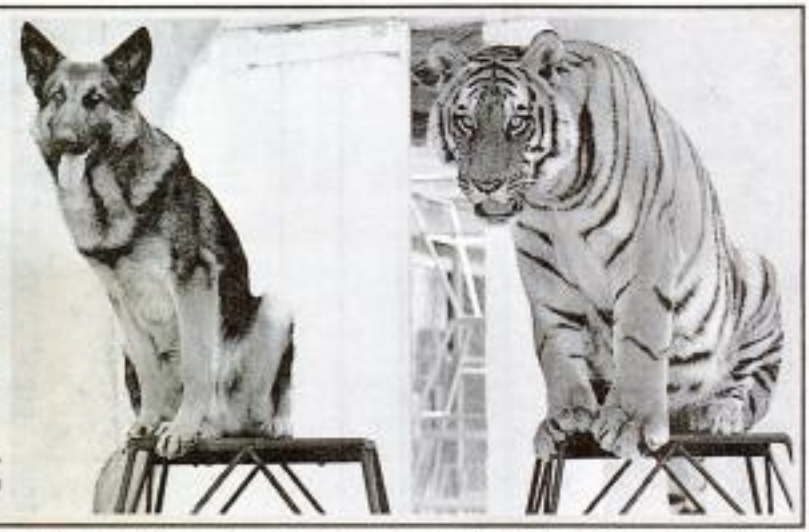
Mixed-up dog thinks he's a tiger!



BIGTOP superpooch Kaiser works in the circus ring alongside the big cats.

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

An incredible canine named Kaiser is the hit of the wild animal act in his circus — because the poor pooch believes he's a jungle cat!

According to animal trainer Wilhelm Braun, the 4-year-old German shepherd was born near the tigers and lions in his act and raised by a tigress after his mother died of pneumonia. He got used to thinking he was a tiger, Braun says, and took to eating, sleeping and even performing with the big cats.

"I used to try to keep him out of the ring when his adopted mother and the other cats were rehearsing, but it broke his heart," says Braun, a German whose free-lance act has been featured in some of the biggest circuses in Europe.

"Finally, I let him train right along with my cats and put him into the act. The audience just loves him and the big cats accept him completely."

Braun says his performing pup does so well in the ring that he has given him a starring role in the act. The talented dog "herds" tigers and lions onto their stools and "drives" them in and out of their cages — and performs the same tricks the big cats do.

"Of course, Kaiser isn't really in control — the lions and tigers just let him pretend," Braun said. "Actually, Kaiser has a lot of respect for the cats. He's had a few minor run-ins with a tiger or two and he doesn't want anymore.

"The big cats are kind of fond of Kaiser. He's been with them ever since he was a puppy and they accept him as one of their own. They'd never hurt him."

Braun says that since Kaiser joined the show his animal act has gotten so popular that he is getting twice the bookings he used to get before the dog joined the show.

"Audiences think Kaiser's a gutsy dog and they like watching him boss the lions and tigers around," Braun said. "He's a real showstopper."

He wanted to watch ROBOCOP!

SCREEN STAR Peter Weller played Robocop in the hit movie.

Boy, 7, kills maid — because she changed TV channel!

By JOE BERGER / Staff writer

Spoiled schoolboy Alfredo Secoro, 7, got so miffed when a family maid changed TV channels on him that he grabbed a gun — and blew her brains out!

Philippine police say bratty Alfredo then switched back to the movie Robocop and watched it to the end as ill-fated maid Anna Esquival lay dead just six feet away.

"Once his movie was over, he calmly called headquarters and informed us he'd killed somebody who'd been messing with his TV show," dumbfounded Detective Manuel de Rios told reporters in Manila.

"He was very nonchalant about the whole thing, like he thought he had every right to shoot her for turning off something he wanted to watch.

"The boy comes from a very rich family with a whole houseful of servants who treat him like a little prince — so naturally, he's absolutely spoiled rotten.

"And when a lowly maid changed the TV on him, he got his father's gun and shot her, like it was the natural thing to do."

The baby-faced first-grader told police he was watching his favorite movie — about a bionic cop who blows away bad guys at every turn — when hapless Anna, 26, walked up and flipped on a soap opera.

"There were plenty of other TVs in the house, but apparently Miss Esquival, the maid, thought Alfredo was too young to be watching a movie with so much violence, so she switched to something else," Det. de Rios said.

"The boy flew into a rage, got his father's .22-caliber handgun from a dresser drawer, walked up behind the lady and shot her twice in the head.

"They were alone in the house, so the little brat went back to his movie and finished watching it before he called the police. Later we asked if he felt bad about what he'd done and all he'd say was, 'She deserved it — she was mean to me.' "

Authorities say the kid is too young to be charged with a crime under Philippine law, but his dad will be charged with reckless homicide for allowing his son access to the gun.

DEAD SEA

ROME — Portions of the Dead Sea Scrolls that are so secret only a handful of scholars have seen them reveal that Jesus Christ will return to Earth in 1996, diseases of all kinds will be eliminated in 1997 — and the world will end 1,000 years from now, in the year 2993!

Five new commandments found in 1998!

That's the word from famed Italian Bible scholar Dr. Carlo Renzo, who claims to be one of only 17 people, including Pope John Paul II, who have examined the passages that have been kept in a secret vault at the Vatican since 1949. The secret scrolls also predict:

- A worldwide economic boom in 1994. Some of the language is obscure, but the passage suggests that the upturn will come about after Russia becomes America's 51st state.
- The creation of a one-world government and religion in 1997.

Portions of the scrolls are badly decayed and unreadable, but references to massive explosions and firestorms suggest that the era of global unity will be preceded by a full-scale nuclear holocaust in 1995.

Whole world will have single govt. in 1997!

By KENT BALIN
Special correspondent

- The end of all sickness in 1997. The reference contains several key words that defy translation. But passages that remain legible refer to the discovery of a "healing herb" that will cure diseases of every description.
- The discovery of five new commandments to go along with the original 10 in 1998. Oddly enough, it is said that one of the commandments will admonish people against having children between 1999 and 2010.
- The appearance of millions of angels in the skies over the Holy Land in 1999. These angels will fight and repel "evil from the stars" — an apparent reference to space aliens.
- The development of a new technology that will enable doctors to raise the dead in 1999.
- The wife of a great leader will succeed him in 1996. This is an apparent reference to Hillary Clinton becoming our next President.
- The annihilation of hundreds of millions of people when South America sinks into the ocean in 2001.
- The return of Jesus Christ in 1996. Strangely enough, the passage states that Christ will first appear in secret to say that Christ will appear on Earth "not as a child, but as a grown man."
- The end of the world on July 7, 2993. "The passages were hidden from the public because the men who have controlled the scrolls since their discovery in 1947 decided that the information was too explosive to be revealed to the world," explained Dr. Renzo.

"I agreed with the decision to keep them secret for many years," he continued.

"But at least 50 predictions contained in the scrolls have already come true. And after much thought, and even more prayer, I have taken it upon myself to tell mankind what it has a right to know.

"These are trying times. Evil is rampant in the world and Satan is sowing the seeds of misery and damnation everywhere you look.

"People need assurances that there really is a God.

"Even more importantly, they need to know that God the means for their salvation."

Dr. Renzo's report touched off a controversy that is certain to rage for months or even years to come.

French Bible scholar Hubert Baylet, who has written extensively on the scrolls since their discovery by a Palestinian shepherd boy in 1947, spoke for many when he criticized Dr. Renzo "for leaking information that few people on this planet are mature enough to understand."

Dr. Renzo himself stood by his decision, saying: "All but a few of the most sensitive scrolls have already been made public. It was my moral duty to get the whole story out."

1-800-TATTLE

Bizarre hotline helps you keep tabs on your teen's driving!

CONCERNED PARENT Larry Gibson and his son Chris display the bumper sticker Larry created.

Worried parents can find out if their newly licensed teenage kids are hot-rodding around town in the family car with a tattletale bumper sticker that reads — "How's My Teenager Driving? 1-800-Tell Someone."

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

"There isn't a parent alive who hasn't gotten a lump in their stomach when they turned over the car keys to their teenage children," said Larry Gibson.

"Every time one of my kids got their license, my wife and I worried, 'What if we get that phone call that they'd been hurt or killed?'"

So Gibson, a chiropractor in Macon, Ga., found a way for parents to find out if their kids are putting too much metal to the pedal or just plain reckless behind the wheel. He set up a toll-free line in Georgia, and for $65 a year, parents can put the bumper sticker on the back bumper of their teen's car.

Parents will affix an ID sticker on the car and Gibson's computer will match that number or the car's license plate number to the teen driver's name.

If someone spots a teen wheeling recklessly around town and calls 1-800-tell-som, Gibson and his wife, Pat, will listen and decide if the call is credible or not. Credible complaints will be passed along to the teen's parents.

"I don't want no grown-up tailing me around town and then squealing to my parents," said one teen. "It would be some stranger's word against mine and I'd probably lose."

Another teen told Weekly World News:

"How would my parents know it wasn't some kook just trying to get me in trouble?"

That worried Gibson's son, Chris, at first. He was embarrassed to have the sticker on the rear bumper, but he's gotten used to it.

"If that sticker makes my son or anyone else's child drive safer, it's worthwhile," Gibson said.

"And as a parent, I sleep a little better knowing there are people out there making my son a more careful driver."

Should the bumper sticker idea be successful in Georgia, Gibson plans to extend it na-

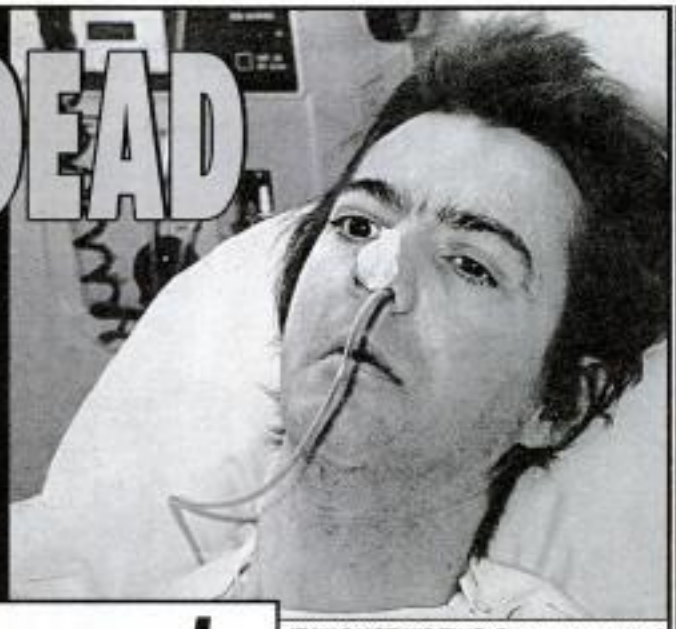
NEW AIRPORT LOUNGE OPENS FOR JET-SET COWS!

The busiest airport in Amsterdam, Holland, has opened a fancy new lounge to provide preflight food and drink — for jet-set cows!

"We expect the lounge to be hopping," said a spokesman at Schipol Airport. "At least 10,000 cows pass through here each year on their way to destinations all over the world."

The lounge is actually a fully equipped shed where cattlemen can feed and water their bossies before they wing away. The airport has also hired eight specially trained stewards to tend to the cows before

I WAS DEAD FOR 48 HOURS . . . and visited my 17-year-old sister in heaven!



IT WAS NOT HIS TIME: Doctors pronounced Michael Delepine dead twice in two days.

By TONY CASSIDY
Correspondent

A man who was pronounced dead and taken to a funeral home suddenly opened his eyes two days later and told his stunned parents, "I'm cold!"

"I imagine he was cold," declared the doctor who pronounced him dead. "When I examined him, he was very cold . . . stone-cold dead!"

The doctor said the fact Michael is alive is nothing less than a miracle. But Michael said his return is God's will.

"I had to come back because it wasn't my time to die," 33-year-old Michael Delepine told his stunned father Alfred. "I saw my dead sister Emily and she said I had to return to my body and remain with the living.

"She said God had things for me to do before I could join Him in His heavenly kingdom.

"Emily was only 17 when cancer took her from us. The disease had robbed her of her hair and her youthful looks. She had suffered terribly and it showed.

"But all that is gone now. She is beautiful again. She looked so angelic . . . so happy and at peace. She said, 'Tell Mama and Papa I love them.' Then she sent me back."

Medical officials in Belgium said the incredible case began when Michael went to bed for an afternoon nap in the home he shares with his parents in the city of Dour.

Later, the father went to his son's room, found him lying motionless on the floor and hurriedly called a doctor.

The family physician rushed to the Delepine home, where he immediately checked Michael's vital signs. Finding no heartbeat or respiration, the doctor pronounced him dead.

An hour later, Michael was taken to a funeral home to be prepared for burial. But because there was no doctor in attendance when he died, an autopsy had to be performed before the corpse could be embalmed.

Swamped with work, it was two days before the coroner finally sent for Michael's body. But as it was about to be transported to the coroner's office, an attendant heard the corpse breathe!

A doctor and Michael's parents were quickly summoned.

But when the doctor couldn't detect any signs of life, Michael was pronounced dead a second time. His parents were devastated.

As Michael lay on the gurney awaiting the trip to the coroner's office, he slowly opened his eyes and sat up. His parents, standing quietly at his side, gasped in disbelief.

Seeing his parents there, Michael said, "I'm cold."

Later, when he was stronger, he revealed that he had died and that his soul had left his body and ascended into heaven. Then he gave them Emily's message.

"When Emily told me I had to go on living, I was very disappointed. I didn't want to leave her or that beautiful place. But there was nothing I could do. Suddenly I just opened my eyes . . . and I was back."

'This man was a stone-cold corpse,' say stunned doctors!

ITALIAN STALLION SHOCKER!

Rocky would rather be stranded on a desert island with a MAN than a woman!

MACHO man Sly's fantasy island is for BOYS ONLY!

Sylvester Stallone, the Italian Stallion, right? Wrong!

"If I was stuck on an island for 20 years, who would I rather go with? My best male buddy or the most beautiful woman in the world? I'd definitely go with my buddy," says Sly, breaking a million female hearts.

"You could have wonderful sex with a girl. You could run on the beach. Watch perfect sunsets. The wind would cascade through her hair, there'd be a flower behind her ear."

And what then macho man?

"Cut to 10 years later: Okay, enough already? I mean, what do we talk about? It'd be a whole different thing. So I would think that the outrageous, raucous, stupid banter guys often enter into would be preferable to the politically correct relationship between a man and a woman for 25 years."

It would only seem like 25 years, Sylvester. And for the record, Stallone's best friend is Tony Munafo, who started out as his bodyguard 16 years ago and is now Sly's associate producer. "Anybody ever hurts Sly," says Tony, "I'll kill him."

Oprah Winfrey has shed 50 pounds lately but the richest gal in showbiz is still much, much larger than life.

But Oprah ain't about to switch places.

Country queen Dolly Parton doesn't think she's getting too big for her britches — not when you start out in life as dirt poor as Dolly did. "I'm not leaving country, I'm taking it with me," says Dolly to her narrow-minded Nashville critics.

"I'll never have too much money. I'm from a very poor family. There's no such thing as too much money for somebody that's as poor as we were. But money is not what motivates me," says the petite blonde bombshell, who is estimated by insiders to be worth $70 million. "I was blessed to come from those humble beginnings."

MORE is never enough: Dolly

Dolly's early years were media-deprived, to say the least. "I was always impressed with Cinderella and Mother Goose and all those things when I was a kid, because we didn't have television or movies then. I kinda patterned my look after Cinderella and Mother Goose — and the local hooker."

ANGRY HOUSEWIFE BITES OFF HER LESBIAN NEIGHBOR'S TONGUE!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

An oversexed lesbian lover tried to force her romantic desires on an angry neighbor — and got her tongue bitten off!

Neither the biter, in her 50s, nor the victim, in her 40s, were identified by deputies in Athens, Ala., who gave this account of what happened.

The biter said her neighbor came inside her house and started making sexual advances. The woman started unzipping her pants and began kissing her.

"The biter said when the woman put her tongue in her mouth, she decided to teach her a lesson and make her pay," said Sheriff Mike Blakely. Deputies found the victim bleeding and in pain at a friend's house.

"About one-third of her tongue was missing and we never did find it," Sheriff Blakely said.

Deputies said the victim had been a "source of problems" to the biter and her husband in the past, but they didn't elaborate.

Neither woman wanted to file charges against the other.

Asked how the victim was recuperating, the sheriff replied, "She won't be licking too many ice cream cones for a while."

Swami turns cop into a cat!

A Hindu holy man got so fed up with an overbearing policeman that he turned him into a screeching, flea-scratching cat!

Policeman Khalid Dhondy was trying to arrest the unidentified swami when he was put under the incredible spell.

"My husband still looks like a man, but he has the mind of a tomcat," Khalid's weeping wife Gargi told reporters.

"He runs around on all fours, meowing at me and rubbing against my legs. He sleeps on the floor in the corner and uses a litter box when he has to go."

Witnesses say the swami was being arrested for singing in public when he waved his arms wildly and told the cop he would live the rest of his days as a cat.

Khalid's family is desperately searching for the swami over what happened to the cruel cop.

"Khalid was a bully who loved to push people around just to show them who's boss," said vegetable merchant Vichiss Rath. "He harassed honest citizens for no reason and put people in jail when they'd done nothing wrong."

GORGEOUS gals like this will still look good — but boy, will they stink if the anti-perfume wackos get their way!

Pollution fruitcakes want to ban perfume

PHEW!

I'm so pig-biting mad I could chew through a brass bullet over a new fruitcake movement to ban wearing perfume and cologne in public!

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

What the hell is this country coming to, for crying out loud?

- In New Jersey, they're passing out PERFUME POLLUTES buttons.
- In New York, they're demanding magazines without fragrance samples on the pages.
- And in California (you might have known) the nut cases want to ban perfume and cologne at public meetings and set aside "fragrance free" areas like they do for smoking now.

Environmental nuts say it's as bad as cigarette smoke!

And not only that, there's even talk of banning perfume and cologne on domestic flights of 500 miles or less, for Pete's sake. Do that, friends, and every jetliner in America will smell like a French elevator.

What these nincompoop groups don't know is that Americans are the best-smelling people on the planet — mainly because they dab on perfume and cologne all the time.

I'm an Old Spice man myself and I can tell you that in 41 years of wearing the stuff, nobody has ever held their noses when I'm around.

"The fragrance industry is out of control, and we're literally sick of it," whines Mary Lamielle, president of the National Center of Environmental Health Strategies. This Lamielle lady claims that a snootful of perfume makes some people sick.

Well, a snootful of B.O. sure makes yours truly sick.

"Many people are sensitive to fragrances," says Sandy Ross, president of Health and Habitat. Her wacky group wants to ban perfume at public meetings and the like. Great! They'll have to pass out clothespins for everybody's noses at city council meetings.

Let's face it. Some of the folks who say perfume or cologne makes them sick are nut cases. If American women didn't wear a lot of perfume they'd smell like barnyard pigs in no time flat. Even pretty gals like those models on magazine covers would stink to high heaven.

It's a known medical fact that gals ripen faster than men and would smell up America's offices so fast we'd all be wearing gas masks.

With most human beings, soap and water just doesn't do the trick. It takes a few splashes of perfume or cologne to REALLY smell nice.

HOW TO KISS UP TO YOUR BOSS & GET AHEAD — IN 4 EASY STEPS

The employees most likely to get ahead on the job are the ones who flatter the boss, laugh at his jokes and agree with him most of the time!

That's the not-so-surprising finding of a recent study by Ron Deluga, a psychology supervisors and subordinates in New England.

"Kissing up to the boss can make a real difference," says Prof. Deluga.

"People can be rewarded without it, but it won't be easy and it won't be as often."

- Dress the way he does.
- Be enthusiastic about the workplace.

Topless dancer stabs and mulches beau, say cops

A sexy topless dancer was locked up in the slammer because cops say she stabbed her boyfriend to death, then ground his body into little pieces and spread his remains along busy Interstate Highway 95.

Michelle Roger, 27, was arrested in Sanford, Fla., for the grisly slaying of rock 'n' roll drummer David Richmond, 28, who disappeared in December 1992.

The victim operated his own tree-trimming business during the day. "There's a strong possibility the victim was chopped up and ground into mulch by his own wood chipper," said sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough. "We believe his remains are scattered along I-95 all the way south to Miami."

Cops say the curvy dancer told informants in secretly tape-recorded conversations that she stabbed her boyfriend to death during an argument about her dancing.

"She contacted other people. They came over and removed the body, brought it to a field they owned and burned it to a skeleton," said another sheriff's spokesman, George Proeschel.

"Then they took the skeleton, put it through a wood chipper and poured the remains in concrete. When the concrete dried, they chopped it up and took a ride down I-95 toward Miami, throwing it out the window along the way," Proeschel said.

Without a body, most of the evidence is circumstantial, but a 1991 state supreme court ruling strengthened prosecutors' hands in proving death in such cases.

"We feel we have concrete evidence, no pun intended," Proeschel said.

Michelle has pleaded not guilty to a second-degree murder charge and was released after posting $25,000 bond.

There have been no other arrests in the case thus far.

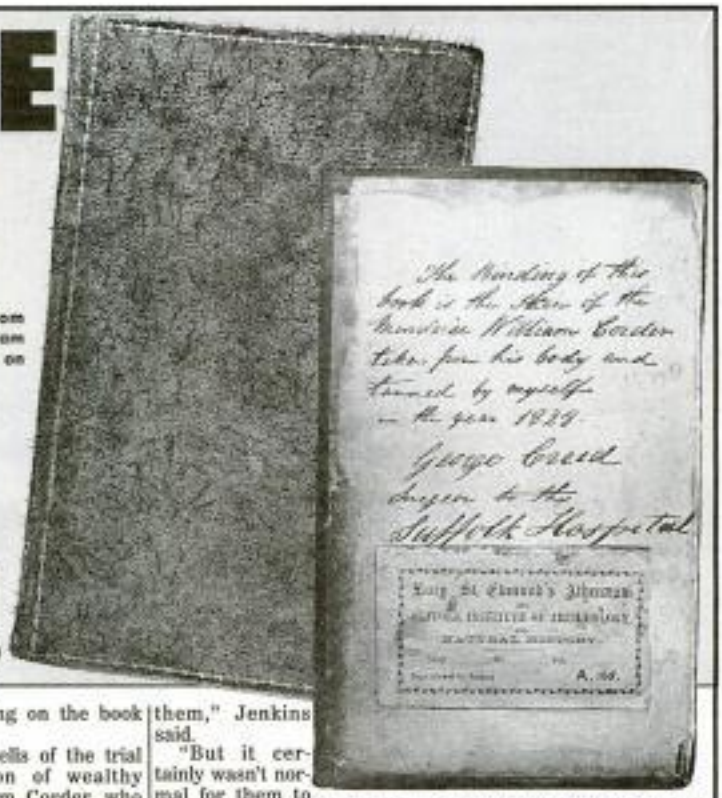
BOOK MADE OF HUMAN SKIN IS GROWING REAL HAIR!



THIS book was made from the skin of murderer William Corder, as the inscription on the first page explains.

A book made of human skin is growing human hair!

The ghoulish book was made from the skin of murderer William Corder in 1828 and grew hair for several weeks before stopping.

But amazingly the hair has started to grow again.

"It's eerie," said Gareth Jenkins, assistant curator of Moyses Hall Museum in Bury St. Edmunds, England, where the grisly volume is displayed.

"You could always feel the stubble that had grown in the 1800s. But a few weeks ago, I noticed that the hair was getting softer and longer.

"There's no doubt that the hair is growing on the book again."

The book tells of the trial and execution of wealthy farmer William Corder, who had killed his mistress.

The book was published in 1828 after Dr. George Creed, the local surgeon, dissected Corder's body.

"It was the custom of that time to dissect murderers to examine them to see if there was anything different about them," Jenkins said.

"But it certainly wasn't normal for them to bind a book with their skin."

Indeed, there are many odd and mysterious aspects to this murder.

The case became so famous in England that Dr. Creed partially skinned Corder.

The doctor tanned Corder's hide and used it to bind a copy of the book written about the crime. Meanwhile, leftover pieces of the tanned hide were sold as curiosities.

"People purchased pieces of the skin and went around tasting it to see if it tasted like leather," said Jenkins. "And I understand it did."

The murder itself is still shrouded in mystery and involved bizarre incidents never explained.

The 25-year-old Corder was a wealthy farmer. His mistress Maria Marten, 26, was the daughter of a poor baker. She bore an illegitimate child with Corder.

The baby disappeared when it was 2 months old and many suspect Corder had killed and buried it. Then Corder shot and buried Maria.

The body might have never been found except for strange dreams of Maria's stepmother. She told police to dig in the barn where they unearthed Maria's corpse.

Radio station hires real loonies as DJs!

By BRANDON STEELE / Correspondent

The wackiest disc jockeys on Earth work for a radio station in Barcelona, Spain, where nobody is hired unless he lives in a loony bin — and is certifiably insane!

The station began airing in January of 1991. An average day's programming includes:

● The Catatonia Hour — 60 minutes of silence broken by an occasional commercial, and even less frequently, one of host Gloria Molina's gut-wrenching sobs.

● Drive Time with Rafael Novell — Two hours of contemporary music punctuated by Novell reciting the alphabet both forward and backward over and over again.

● News Talk — A 30-minute radio magazine featuring Pablo Martin, who doubles as his own sidekick, Maria Modol. Martin plays the news straight but Miss Modol is just as apt to lie. She reported the outbreak of nuclear war 73 times in April alone.

● The Civil Defense Segment — A prerecorded color world. Host Salvador Calbo rates the signals on an anxiety scale of 1 to 53.

● Tiny Tim's Greatest Hit — DJ Felix Campas plays Tiptoe Through the Tulips until he gets tired of hearing it and starts talking about the "guy words "bearskin rug" or "dirt."

● Killer Minute — A psychopath named Rafael Cebrian threatens to murder and mutilate a new victim every hour on the hour, telling them exactly what to expect if he ever escapes the asylum.

"You want crazy, we'll give you crazy," said Antonio Alvarez, manager of the tiny 5,000-watt station. "Ever since we went 'wacko' in 1991 our ratings have gone through the roof. Bleeding hearts say we're exploiting

The world's first test-tube baby turns 15!

TODAY Louise Brown, the world's first test-tube baby, is a healthy, normal 15-year-old.

OLDHAM, England — You'd never know it to look at her, but Louise Brown's birth on July 25, 1978, assured her a permanent niche in medical history — as the world's first test-tube baby!

That event — the first authenticated success with human in vitro fertilization — was celebrated around the globe as a turning point in human reproduction and gave new hope to countless childless couples.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Today, Louise is a healthy, normal 15-year-old who, according to her heroic mom, likes "loud music and stupid clothes" and who prefers the companionship of her chums to "us old codgers."

And today, in vitro fertilization is an established and accepted technique in the treatment of infertility with 4,000 births in the U.S. and 16,000 worldwide in 1991, according to the most recent available figures.

John and Lesley Brown had never even heard the words "in vitro fertilization" until they read them in their local newspaper.

The story inspired the childless couple to search for a doctor willing to try the new technique that had until then been tried only with laboratory animals. Eventually they found Dr. Robert G. Edwards and Dr. Patrick C. Steptoe.

The two researchers had toiled for 10 years in developing their technique of surgically removing an egg from a woman's ovary, fertilizing it with her husband's sperm and then injecting the fertilized embryo into the woman's uterus.

The determined doctors had tried and failed in 70 previous attempts at human in vitro fertilization. Their string of disappointing failures ended on July 25, 1978, with the birth of little Louise Brown.

Looking back on his research with Dr. Steptoe, Dr. Edwards said the acceptance of in vitro fertilization is gratifying. "I've always said that we were not inventors," he explained. "We didn't invent ovulation or human fertilization. We just put things together to the best advantage. The product of our work was a baby . . . a human being. That's something to be very humble about."

"Gently I gave her this advice:

1.) "Dress up and use makeup dence, self-respect and a better self-image.

"Your husband not only feels more attracted to you, he feels flattered that you're trying to please him. And that makes him more attentive to you.

2.) "Be a friend. There's more to making love than just sex. A great number of feelings are involved — trust, intimacy, caring, openness, desire, need and sharing. Work to be friends with your husband. Take an ining lingerie, doesn't work. Make the best of what you have got within the borderlines of good taste.

4.) "Make time for fun. Hire a baby-sitter at least once a week and go out with your husband. Eat out. Go to the movies, but make sure they're comedies. Divide household chores among the whole family so that you have more time to relax together."

Two weeks later, Roberta returned to Dr. Liswood: "It's a miracle," she Boozing dad jailed for leaving kids in freezing car!

Father of four Michael Axten has been sentenced to prison for stopping by a bar for a few belts — while his shivering kids waited outside in below freezing weather.

Ice was forming on the inside of the windows of Axten's parked car when cops arrived two hours after he went into the bar in Doylestown, Pa.

The children, ages 4 to 11, were not badly injured by the exposure.

Axten pleaded guilty to four counts of endangering the welfare of the children and was sentenced to two to 12 months in prison.

TAMMY Lassec cleans up after ghostly invasion.

Chicago couple's incredible story!

FAT GHO

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Harried cabbie Danny Lassec and his horrified wife Tammy are being eaten out of house and home — by two fat, sandwich-gobbling ghosts who raid their refrigerator every night of the week!

"They're a couple of real hippos, and total slobs besides," sighed desperate Danny, 32.

"There's a man and a woman, and they'd weigh at least 300 pounds apiece if they were alive.

"Every night they just appear in our kitchen like magic, yanking everything out of the refrigerator, making sandwiches, frying up potatoes on the stove and making an absolute mess out of everything.

"I wouldn't mind being haunted by an ordinary old ghost who wandered around banging doors and stuff at night. But these guys — man, they're turning our lives into a nightmare."

PHANTOM couple raids the Lassecs' refrigerator nightly, leaving it in shambles!

The fridge-looting spooks first waddled into the Lassecs' lives six weeks ago, just days after the couple moved into their tidy, two bedroom home outside Chicago.

"Danny and I were in the living room watching the late movie one night when we heard a godawful racket in the kitchen and went running to see what was going on," flabbergasted Tammy recalled.

Pair of 300-lb. phantoms raid refrigerator — then vanish!

"And there were these two slobs wolfing down big old pastrami and cheese sandwiches — made with the pastrami and cheese I'd been planning to make Danny's lunch with.

"They had lettuce and mustard and mayonnaise spilled all over everything and they were shoving food in their mouths like they hadn't eaten in months.

"It was the weirdest thing. ... that these weren't real people, they were ghosts. Neither one of us had ever seen a ghost before but we knew we were seeing ghosts that night, by God. We let out a gasp and they simply vanished — leaving a terrible mess behind."

But the pastrami-chomping poltergeists were back the next night — and they've been feeding their fat faces at the Lassecs' expense ever since.

"We've tried everything to keep them from eating us out of house and home but nothing seems to work," frantic Danny told reporters.

"We even tried padlocking the fridge, but obviously, padlocks don't mean a thing to a ... they ate more and made a bigger mess.

"Then we started loading the refrigerator with different kinds of food, figuring we'd hit on something they didn't like and then maybe they'd leave us alone. But no matter what kind of old leftovers or junk food we put in there, they eat it like it's a feast fit for a king. There just seems to be no way to stop them."

The hapless hubby says he has no idea who the fatso phantoms are or why they've chosen his house to chow down in. But their visits are so irritating he and his miffed missus are on the verge of leaving their dream home for an apartment in the city.

"They're not scary or anything, they're just obnoxious," he said with a sigh. "It's like having your fat aunt and uncle come in every night, eat everything in

DOGS NEED PSYCHOLOGICAL HELP, TOO!

By RAY HARMON / Correspondent

You can handle your dog's most common psychological problems, says an expert, who reveals how to keep the pet from tearing up your house when you're gone.

"Most dog problems occur because people don't understand animal behavior," says Dr. Daniel Tortora, a noted psychologist.

Dr. Tortora, author of the book Help! This Animal is Driving Me Crazy, identified these common problems and then told how to solve them:

● SEPARATION. Some dogs howl and destroy things when their owners leave them alone in the house, especially dogs who are left alone a lot from puppyhood.

When the owner returns and sees the mess, he punishes the dog.

But all this teaches the dog is to avoid doing these things when the owner is at home, not when the owner is away.

Dogs don't understand automatically that when you leave, you'll be coming back. So the idea is to teach them that you will return at any moment, and reward them for good behavior.

MOST DOGS need to be better understood, says a noted psychologist.

To do this, start leaving the dog alone for very small periods of time.

Reward the dog for being good each time you return. Lengthen your absences, continuing the rewards, until the dog is trained.

This technique teaches the dog that you are always going to return, and that you are going to reward him for not misbehaving.

● JEALOUSY. Ignore the dog when it tries to get your attention in an unpleasant way.

Don't fall into the trap of attending to the dog when it's behaving badly.

Instead, make an issue of rewarding the dog with praise and affection when it is quiet. Focus on the good behavior, not the bad.

● AGGRESSIVE BEHAVIOR. Dogs use aggressive behavior to maintain a position of dominance in the family.

One of the ways a dog will do this is by taking dominant postures, such as elevating itself to a higher level than that of the master.

Large dogs may put their paws on your shoulders, or their head on your head, if you're sitting on the floor.

Smaller dogs may climb up on a sofa to get high enough to put their paws on your head or on your lap.

When this happens, just push the dog off. Then put your head on the dog's head, or your hands on its shoulders, or pet the animal on the head.

The 3-D film Monica's Journey, by famed Austrian filmmaker Klaus Schroeder, was pulled from theaters in the cities of Vienna and Graz where it had been playing in limited release.

"This is a very dangerous picture," says Dieter Klar of the Austrian Film Board. "We ordered it off the market after 31 people literally died of fright.

"We continue to get protest mail from psychiatrists treating hundreds of people who have been suffering chronic and vivid nightmares since they saw it."

Schroeder

But Franz Merki, Schroeder's press agent and business manager, is working on a distribution deal to bring the movie to America. He calls Klar's statement "a ridiculous exaggeration."

"Those people did not 'die of fright,'" says Merki. "They died from heart attacks and strokes. They were all old. If they hadn't died in the theater they would have died somewhere else." Merki was referring to the fact that all but one of the victims were in their 60s and 70s.

"Klaus is a brilliant director who's created a horror masterpiece. Horror films are supposed to affect people strongly. Allow the films to run and let people decide whether to see it."

But not all people in the cinema community agree with Merki. Corrina Moser, a noted Austrian film critic, says, "This is the most vivid and terrifying movie I've ever seen. It's not entertainment. It's a powerful unpleasant psychological experience that deeply affects the mind. No one who sees it will ever be the same again.

"All prints of it should be destroyed."

A press release capsulizes the film by saying, "A small child is kidnapped by the Devil and her pretty young mother must journey through a haunting, flaming Hell to get her back."

If negotiations succeed, Monica's Journey could open here by Christmas of '94.

Sweethearts hide in woods 3 years — until they're old enough to get married!

JACK WURDEN

DIANE WURDEN

By SCOTTY PAUL / Correspondent

In one of the world's most amazing love stories, a teenage couple hid in a forest for three heart-wrenching years — until they were old enough to marry.

Jack and Diane Wurden ate roots, berries, mushrooms, fish from a small stream and an occasional rabbit and lived in a makeshift shelter while hiding from the rest of the world.

"Most of the time we lived on love. We had little else," said the two sweethearts, who were 15 when they ran away from home to wait until they reached the legal marrying age of 18.

The lovestruck kids met in 1988 and realized immediately they were hopelessly in love. But their strict parents forbade them to see each other.

"We couldn't bear to be apart, so we gathered a few clothes and ran away," Jack explained. "I knew of this remote spot in the Eagle Cap Wilderness area, not too far from our home in LaGrande, Ore.

"We chose a secluded spot and made a shelter out of plastic sheets and pieces of wood. We had no light, no radio, no games to play. We only had each other.

"The winters were long and cold and the summers scorching hot, but we had our love to keep us warm. And that's all that really mattered.

"I can't pretend it was a pleasant three years. It was so wet and cold in the forest sometimes we felt like giving up and going home. But we knew our parents would keep us apart."

Back in LaGrande, their parents had notified police the lovesick teens left a note that they had run away.

"We knew the police had more important things to do than look for us," Diane said. "We counted on that."

Jack and Diane left their forest hideaway a day after she turned 18 in 1991. They were married two days later.

"We've been married two years now and our love grows stronger with each passing day," Diane told a reporter. "We went through so much in those woods, we can handle anything life throws our way — as long as we're together."

TODDLER SCALPED BY A CAKE MIXER!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

'It leaped right off the counter and attacked her,' says horrified mom

Busy mom Lynne Poolton turned her head away for a split second and her curious 2-year-old toddler was scalped — by a cake mixer.

"It was as if the mixer leaped right off the kitchen counter and attacked Charlotte," said the horrified mother.

As the terrified tot screamed in pain, the panic-stricken mom raced across the kitchen to switch off power to the mixer. But it was too late.

"Her hair got tangled in the spinning whisks of the mixer when she bent over to look at the cake mixture I was making," said Mrs. Poolton.

"The mixer ripped out a 5-inch-square patch of her blonde hair by the roots.

"The chocolate cake mixture was all over the place. I started to untangle her hair, but it came off in clumps."

Her worried parents rushed the injured toddler to a hospital in Northfield, England, where doctors were amazed she suffered only minor scalp cuts.

"It was like a scene from a video horror movie," said the shocked mom. "I turned away to reach for a cake tin and the mixer lifted right off the counter and attached itself to her head."

Though her little girl was running around playing two hours after the accident, her thankful mother was still in shock.

"I want this to serve as a warning to all busy moms. It was the kind of accident every mother has nightmares about. All mothers should be reminded how quick kids are."

"IT WAS like a scene from a horror movie," said Charlotte's mom Lynne Poolton. But two hours later the brave little girl was running around playing.

Florida man builds new career on hair loss

Meet the real-life Mr. Clean!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

In 1977, Buddy Thomley Jr. lost every hair on his body. But instead of being a disaster, the loss gave him a new career and breathed life into one of America's best-known advertising characters — Mr. Clean!

Eight years later, Buddy won a Mr. Clean look-alike contest and ever since has been touring the U.S. and Canada as the real-life Mr. Clean, the bald genie that puts the muscle in Procter & Gamble's amazingly powerful cleaning liquid.

It's no wonder the Florida businessman views his bizarre hair loss as a blessing in disguise.

"I always say God took my lemon and made me some lemonade," Buddy explained. "I had always been a pretty hairy guy . . . I didn't even have a receding hairline! And I was very conceited. I was always combing my hair."

The former part-time night-club singer once boasted a beard and shoulder-length hair. But then, in a five-week span in 1977, at the age of 30, he lost every hair on his body.

Doctors blamed his hair loss to nerve shock, apparently triggered by the death of a relative that left him responsible for the operation of a string of auto parts stores in Pensacola and Mobile, Ala.

"It was having 60 employees, 10 retail stores and three corporations thrown at me overnight that did it," the now 46-year-old household hero said.

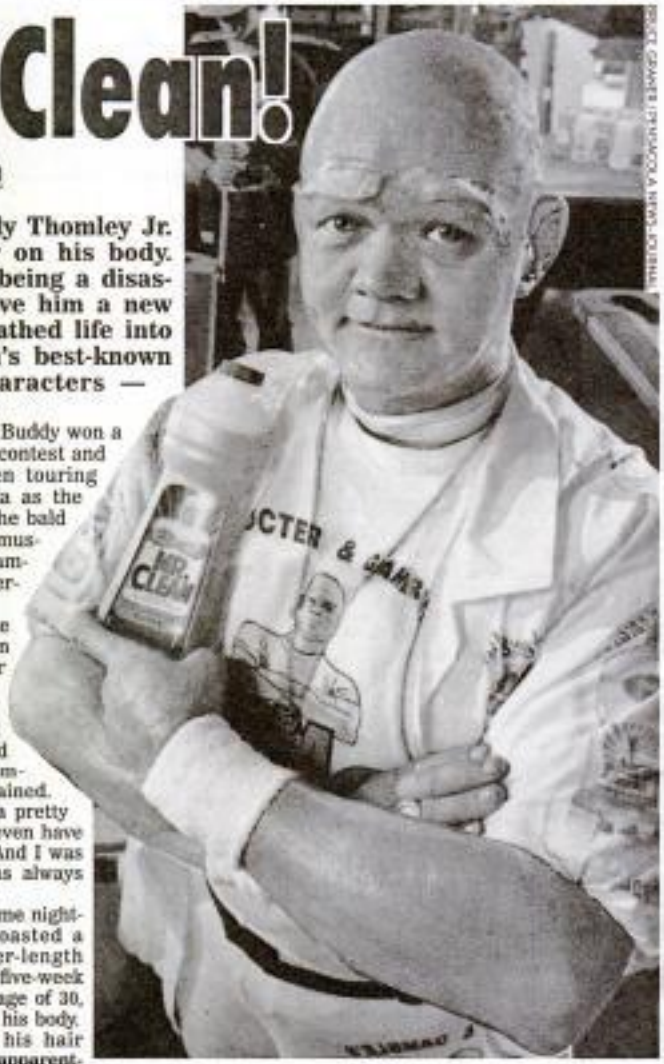
To win the Mr. Clean look-alike contest, Buddy had to beat out 3,300 other macho types with billiard-ball domes.

Now he travels throughout the U.S. and Canada, autographing Mr. Clean bottles and singing the product's well-known TV jingle:

"Mr. Clean gets rid of dirt and grime and grease in just a minute.

"Mr. Clean can clean your whole house and everything that's in it.

"Mr. Clean, Mr. Clean, Mr.



DOCTORS blamed Buddy Thomley's hair loss on nerve shock. The eyebrows are pasted on as part of his costume.

"It needn't cost a fortune to make you and your husband happier," insists psychiatrist Dr. James A. Brussel.

By spending as little as two dollars, and often less, "There are many ways you can enjoy a fuller life," he said.

And he offers the following 12 tips:

1 Buy a couple of pretty candles from the dime store and surprise your husband with dinner by candlelight some evening.

2 Make him feel special by buying iron-on monograms and transferring them to his handkerchiefs.

3 Go out and buy some pine-scented bath essence. When your husband comes home from work and complains that he's tired, draw him a bath with the essence and let him soak in it.

4 Go geisha. Buy a bottle of baby oil and give him a massage with it.

5 Send away for some travel brochures to romantic places.

Then spend time with your husband picking out which places you'd like to visit, even though you may not be able to take a vacation any time soon.

6 If your husband is counting calories, buy him a pocket-size calorie-counting book to carry around with him.

7 If he travels a lot by car, stock up his glove compartment with freshener pads, tissues and gum or candy.

8 Buy a scrapbook and fill it with his favorite cartoons or stories about his favorite hobby or sport.

9 Check thrift shops for an attractive, old frame for his favorite family photo.

10 Make his own soap on a rope.

Bore a hole through a bar of his favorite brand, loop a length of rope through it, and hang it in the shower.

11 If your husband has lost touch with an old friend, put them back in touch; buy a postcard, write some news about the family and send it off to the friend.

12 Take him out for a cup of coffee at the nicest hotel you can find. The elegant surroundings will give both of you a boost.

Indiana man jailed for cheating at golf!

Charles D. Carey has been a familiar figure at small-time charity golf matches, and cops say that's what landed him in an Indiana slammer — for cheating!

The 47-year-old hacker was arrested and charged with theft after he allegedly turned in a doctored scorecard indicating he completed the 18-hole match in only 67 strokes.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Officials of a charity match played at Hanging Tree Golf Club near Noblesville received an anonymous tip that 47-year-old Carey, who lives in nearby Thorntown, might enter the tourney.

The tipster warned that Carey is a cheater who had won at other charity games by turning in shaved scores.

CAREY trimmed at least 13 strokes from his score, say cops who watched him play.

Plainclothes cops were on hand to keep their own scorecard when they tailed him around the course. They said his score should have been at least 13 strokes higher than the score he submitted.

"From what we observed . . . what we counted . . . the score he turned in was lower," Sheriff's Detective Thurl Cecil said.

Ironically, according to Hanging Tree pro Jim King, Carey had erred in adding his score.

"He gave himself a 67 when in fact the numbers on his card added up to 66," King explained. "That would have tied him with the actual winner."

DUFFER Charles Carey turned in a doctored scorecard at a charity golf match.

The score was good enough for second place and a $50 gift certificate, $25 less than the $75 it cost him to enter.

"I'm sure he thought the prize would be worth his time . . . $500 or so," King said.

Det. Cecil said Carey is being held on $7,000 bond. He said Colorado authorities say he is wanted there for forgery. Carey has pleaded innocent to the theft charge.

SPACE ROCK SPARKS FEUD

Angry villagers want government officials to return their good-luck charm — a meteorite that crashed onto a village street last summer.

The space rock was kept at a special bamboo altar after it crashed beside a woman's house in central Thailand last summer.

It was confiscated by the governor of Petchabun province, who cited laws that say objects that fall from the sky belong to the government.

An altar had been built around the place where the meteor fell and people came to pray there for good luck until the iron space

Man's bad breath empties restaurant!

Garlic-lover Tony Fierello emptied a crowded restaurant, driving 47 people out the door — with his horrible breath!

When Mr. Fierello walked into Pietro's Ristorante in Rome and ordered shrimp scampi, no one gave him a second look. But before he was halfway through the garlic-laden meal, his breath was wafting through the elegant dining room, sending customers out in droves.

Finally, even the staff — chefs, waiters and busboys — could stand it no more and ran out into the fresh air.

Fierello found himself totally alone in the large establishment.

Fierello suffers from a digestive condition called "trocsitis." Certain foods like garlic and onions cause a chemical reaction in his system. The result is a very bad case of halitosis (bad breath).

"It was the worst smell I ever experienced," says maitre d' Enrico Santori. "I was sick for a week."

Fierello is being treated for the disorder and doctors say that when properly medicated he will be able to eat spicy dishes with no adverse effects.

Gals would rather stay at home!

Women's libbers were dealt a deadly blow by a startling new survey that says nearly half of America's weaker sex want to stay home and take care of the house.

"To be brutally frank, women are bored with feminism," says sociologist Paula Greenstein.

"Whatever the female campaigners pretend, the vast majority of women want to spend a large part of their lives bringing up their children — not juggling them with stressful full-time jobs."

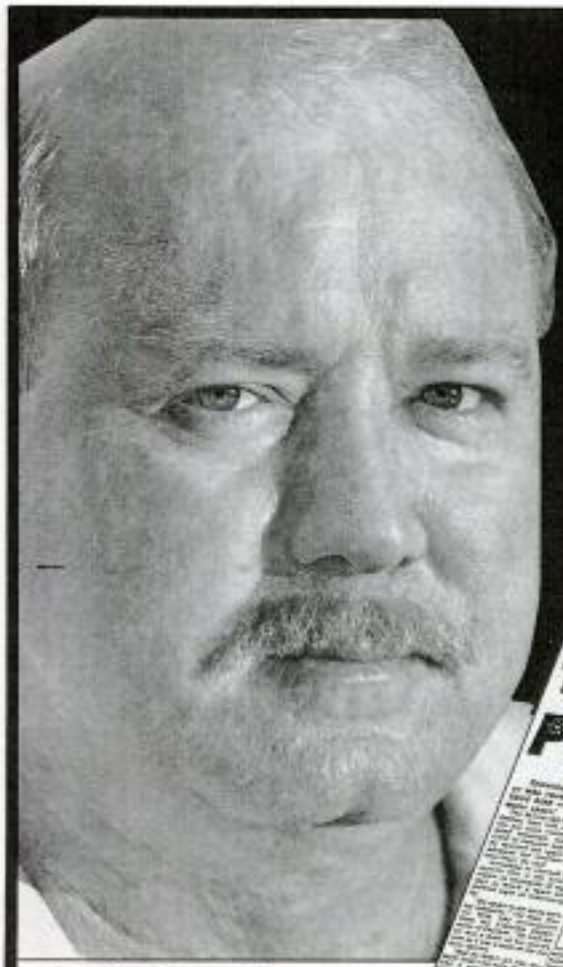
'SISSY SPACE ALIEN RUINED MY LIFE'



TERRORIZED farmer Lester McCabe had a bizarre encounter with a limp-wristed extraterrestrial.

THE SISSY from outer space was first seen in Weekly World News Aug. 23, 1988.

Nebraska man blames pansy from another planet for his nervous breakdown!

Terrified tenant farmer Lester McCabe says he's never been the same since he had an encounter of the third kind — with a 7-foot-tall sissy from outer space!

The Columbus, Neb., man says he's had horrific nightmares, developed sexual problems and had a nervous breakdown since the giant green pansy from Pluto visited his farm three months ago.

"I can't bounce back from this," says McCabe, 44, whose wife left him five weeks after his bizarre encounter. "The guy was a fairy and nutty as a fruitcake and he spoke to me using mental telepathy. I swear he's still talking to me from outer space. I can't get him out of my head."

By LISA MERAKIS
Correspondent

McCabe's visitor bears an uncanny resemblance to a similar space creature who accosted a Colombian farmer in his home in 1988. The incident was covered in the August 23 issue of Weekly World News and received coverage in the international media.

McCabe says his bizarre encounter with the cosmic queen began when he walked into his bedroom late one August afternoon and surprised the alien rifling through his wife's closet. The lanky extraterrestrial was dressed in a silver jumpsuit over silver and red striped tights and carried a bouquet of wildflowers. He stood over 7 feet tall and his arms and legs were delicate and fluttery, the farmer recalled.

"My wife walked in right behind me and she was so frightened she fainted dead away, but I just stood there paralyzed with fear," McCabe said. "He seemed unconcerned about me and went on with what he was doing. He tried on my wife's jewelry and high heels and complained — using telepathy — that he was lonely after so many years traveling in space."

McCabe says he was trying to figure out how to get rid of his limp-wristed visitor when the gangly guy grabbed him and kissed him passionately on the neck. When the startled farmer fought off his disgusting advance, the space sissy burst into tears and ran out the door. McCabe never saw him again from outer space darkened his door McCabe says his life has totally fallen apart.

The farmer says he still receives telepathic messages inside his head from the space visitor. He was so shook up by the alien's gay advances that it affected his sex life and his wife left him.

In October he had a severe nervous breakdown and relatives had to come and help him out with the farm.

"Every time I go to sleep I'm awakened by terrible nightmares in which the space sissy has his way with me," McCabe says. "He has ruined my life. I'll never be PROUD preacher Karl Goodfellow shows off plump, perfect ears of corn. He says the power of prayer gives crops a big boost.

Karl Goodfellow is not a farmer by trade, but he has a proven method of getting crops to grow big, tall and fast — he prays for them!

By R. NEALE LIND
Correspondent

The Methodist minister from Guttenberg, Iowa, conducted a carefully controlled experiment to prove scientifically that praying for crops really works.

He and his congregation planted hundreds of pounds of bean, corn and tomato seeds — about 2 million seeds in all.

"Before we planted them, we took half the seeds up to the altar, put our hands on them and prayed over them," says Rev. Goodfellow. "Then we planted all the seeds in a large garden.

"We gave them all the same amounts of water, soil, sunshine and care, making sure we weren't favoring either set of seeds.

"When the crops came up, the result amazed even me.

"The seed we prayed for grew an incredible 50 percent larger and matured 10 to 15 percent faster than the others."

Rev. Goodfellow says he got the idea for his experiment on a much smaller scale one Sunday, when he was talking to some children in his congregation about prayer and decided to test its power with them.

"We took a handful of great northern beans, prayed for them and planted them in a pie tin. Then we planted another handful in another pie tin but didn't pray for them.

"When we compared the two groups of beans, the first group easily outperformed the second."

This small experiment led Goodfellow to try the larger one.

"Every day I'm more convinced of it," he says. "Prayer is not just some pie-in-the-sky idea. It's a living, working reality. I've seen it work countless times and in countless ways.

"When a sick person believes he's going to get well, energies are released and the person does get well, sometimes in spite of medical treatment."

Rev. Goodfellow believes that what happened in his experiments can work for anyone who prays for crops — or anything else. He has these tips on how to make prayer more effective.

- HAVE FAITH — When you pray expect God to answer your prayer. Expect to see good results.
- BE FLEXIBLE — Don't limit yourself. For instance, if you're praying for seeds, don't ask for the seed to grow big or tall or whatever. Say, "God, let this seed become all You designed it to be."
- DON'T STRAIN — Realize it's God who does the work.

6 WAYS YOU CAN SAVE YOUR HUSBAND'S LIFE

By learning to spot health warning signs, a wife can play a vital role in saving the life of her husband if he is threatened by leading killer diseases, a medical expert says.

FOR WIVES ONLY!

Medical warning signs to watch out for!

By MICHAEL TODD
Special correspondent

"A wife is in the best position to notice changes in her husband," says Dr. William Cunnick.

"She can contribute to early diagnosis by motivating her husband to see a doctor. She may even save his life."

But, Dr. Cunnick stressed, a wife should respond to these changes carefully — because too often, her husband won't. "Men don't want to believe there could be anything wrong with them," he said, and that makes them delay going to a doctor.

Dr. Cunnick advises the wife to react in a "low-key fashion" when she spots an early warning sign, or notices something like her husband declining to go fishing when he would normally have gone.

"It is no good if a wife hits her husband head-on with: 'Well, you've got to see a doctor.' Men get scared off when they hear this," he said. "The first thing a wife should do is sit back and discuss the problem with her husband. She should try to steer him in the right direction, without actually telling him what to do." Here are the warning signs for six life-threatening diseases, with Dr. Cunnick's comments:

● Heart attack — Pain directly in center of chest or a little to left; pain going up left shoulder or jaw, or running down left arm; dizziness and weakness; excessive sweating; pale complexion.

"A heart attack can happen at any age. If the pain persists more than a few minutes, medical attention should be sought immediately."

● High blood pressure — Severe headaches; problems with vision; shortness of breath.

"Untreated, it induces a premature hardening of the arteries and contributes to strokes and heart failure. The wife can be very helpful by making sure he takes his pills every day."

● Diabetes — Intense thirst; excessive urination; weakness and fatigue; dramatic weight loss in very short period, despite good appetite.

The wife is the "absolute key" to a husband's recuperation by helping to insure that he sticks to the diet that can control the disease.

● Lung cancer — Coughing up blood; sudden appearance of persistent cough, not a mere smoker's cough; change in pitch of voice; hoarseness.

"A wife should encourage her husband not to smoke, without nagging him."

● Cancer of the prostate — Passing urine at odd hours, particularly during the night; difficulty in urinating.

"This problem occurs mainly in men who are 60 or older. A wife should be able to notice a change in the urine pattern."

● Skin cancer — Abnormal growth on skin; a sore that won't heal; change in wart or mole.

How to teach kids the value of a dollar!

You can teach your child to appreciate the value of money by following a few common sense tips from an expert.

"A child who learns how to successfully manage his allowance has a big advantage when he becomes a breadwinner and has to work out a major budget," said pediatrician Dr. Walton Harrison.

Dr. Harrison offered these tips for teaching children about money:

- Allow your child to make his own decisions about how to spend his allowance. But do not give him an advance if he runs out of money before the next "payday."
- Don't force your child to save part of his allowance. Instead, encourage him to budget, spend small amounts and, in time, he will learn to buy wisely.
- When your child is ready to start saving, allow him to open a bank account by himself. Go with him, but let him handle the business on his own. Afterward, you can explain to him anything he doesn't understand, such as how his money will earn interest.
- Do not stop your child from lending money to a friend or brother or sister. He can hope the money will be repaid and, if it is not, he will learn a lesson from the experience.
- Encourage your child to give some portion of his allowance to worthy causes. For example, get him to think of a charity he would like to support with a donation.

TENSION CAUSES TOOTH LOSS!

Tension can have you wearing dentures long before your time, warns a top dental expert.

"A person who is under pressure will clench his teeth and, if he has periodontal disease, this will cause a loosening of the teeth," said Dr. Henry S. Brenman, a periodontist. "About 85 percent of the population over 35 has periodontal disease," he revealed, adding that 80 percent of these clench or grind their teeth.

Tension is also a chief cause of trench mouth, which can lead to loss of teeth, he said.

"Trench mouth is a disease which affects approximately 7 percent of the population in the age group 18 to 25. It hits college kids who are under a stress environment, such as students facing exams."

Dr. Stephen Doyne, a clinical psychologist, agrees that "dental problems are an expression of how a person copes with tension. I frequently see tension-related dental prob-

TIME TRAVELER Hugo Vuchnin witnessed a 1912 battle — and captured it on film!

Turkish-born Hugo Vuchnin said he was whisked back in time to the day his grandfather was killed in the bloody 1912 Balkan War — and he has a photograph to prove it!

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

The 37-year-old father of four, who lives in Cleveland, Ohio, said he watched in shock and disbelief as Turkish soldiers set out to engage Italian forces in the bloody battle at Tripoli, Libya — 81 years in the past.

"At the time, I thought I was dreaming or hallucinating," Hugo said of the incident which took place on October 23. "But when I saw the photograph from my camera, I knew then that I had somehow journeyed back to the time and place where my grandfather had died in battle 81 years ago.

"I felt nothing. One moment I was going through an old photo album in my home, looking at a picture of my grandfather wearing his Turkish cavalry uniform.

"The next moment I was standing in a field, overlooking a Turkish military camp.

"I could see very clearly . . . and I could hear the sound of rifles and cannons firing beyond the hills about a mile away. But everything seemed to be moving in slow motion. It was very eerie."

Hugo said he stood there for

Experts confirm:

THIS HISTORIC PHOTO WAS TAKEN JUST DAYS AGO!

Photographic experts subjected Hugo Vuchnin's film to a barrage of electronic scanning tests with the express purpose of proving his photograph of a Balkan War battle scene was taken with a primitive camera back in 1912 — and was actually 81 years old. But they concluded that Vuchnin "took the photo with a modern 35mm camera and fresh film that suggested the photo was just days old."

BACK IN TIME —

Ohio man passed through a time warp, say experts!

what seemed an eternity, watching the Turkish troops move out, hoping to catch a glimpse of his grandfather.

"I could see the cavalrymen moving out and the mules pulling the cannons and heavy machine guns," he said. "The Turks must have known they were outnumbered. They had the look of men about to face a firing squad.

"I was scared and disoriented," he continued. "I really can't explain why or how. But I suddenly realized that I had my camera with me and pulled myself together enough to take a single picture.

"As I stood there, I saw a white mist drifting toward me from the area where the battle was being fought. In a matter of moments, I was completely blanketed in a dense cloud. Slowly the cloud lifted and I saw that I was standing in a vast cemetery with row after row of stone markers on the graves of the Turks who died at Tripoli.

"I was standing by a marker that seemed to glow. It had a strange aura about it and somehow I knew that the grave was where my grandfather was buried.

"My grandmother had always wanted to visit her husband's grave, but she was poor and lived in Turkey. She never had the money to do it before she died.

"As I stood there looking down at the grave where I believed my grandfather was buried, the cemetery was suddenly enveloped in another white mist. The next thing I knew, I was back in my home, gazing at the picture of my grandfather wearing his cavalry uniform.

"I was so excited that I didn't even remember taking the picture.

"But my wife found an exposed roll of color film and had it developed.

"I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw the picture. I thought I had been dreaming.

"But there was a photograph of the Turkish camp just as I saw it," Hugo said.

OPERA SINGER'S HIGH NOTE KILLS 9!

By SCOTTY PAUL /Correspondent

Nine people dropped dead on opening night at the opera when a soprano hit high-C — and their heart pacemakers exploded.

"A standing ovation by the audience was interrupted by the frantic cries of women screaming for a doctor," said one opera fan.

"It was then we saw the seven men and two women lying on the floor."

Paramedics rushed to the theater, but even though they used CPR they were unable to revive any of the victims, who were pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital in Venice, Italy.

Victims' pacemakers exploded inside their chests, say docs!

"In examining the corpses at the morgue, we found that they all had one important thing in common — a pacemaker implanted in their chest," said medical examiner Dr. Alfonse Rognoni.

"When the singer hit high-C and held it for several seconds, the noise served as a trigger for the pacemakers," he added.

"It was much like champagne glasses that shatter when a singer hits a high note."

The shocking deaths sent experts thumbing through their medical books to determine if such an extraordinary incident had ever happened before.

"Trained musicians say it isn't the pitch that causes glasses to break and pacemakers to explode," Dr. Rognoni added.

"It's the duration of the sound."

World-famous psychic Serena Sabak tells you...

HOW TO GET 3 WISHES FROM YOUR PERSONAL GENIE!

YOU can have the help of a friendly genie like the one in the hit movie Aladdin!

Simple five-step plan can make you healthy and wealthy overnight!

UNLEASH the power of your personal genie, Serena says.

By MARCIA TREADWAY / Special correspondent

Everybody has a personal genie and you can get three wishes from yours with a simple technique developed by famed Weekly World News psychic, Serena Sabak!

You heard right. The genies that exist within each of us are ready, willing and able to grant you all the fame, wealth, love and luck you need. And all you have to do is ask for it.

"Getting in touch with your personal genie is easy," explained Serena. "And once you have his attention, he has no choice in the matter — he has to grant you three wishes.

"You can use your wishes to ask for anything you like: Fame, cash, love, new cars or homes, world peace — the possibilities are literally endless.

"My five-point guide is based on years of psychic investigation and research," she added. "Follow it to the letter and you will be successful."

Serena's tips follow — but remember this: Once you get in touch with your genie, the first three things you wish for are apt to come true.

It's a good idea to choose and memorize your wishes first so you don't ask for — and get — the wrong things.

1. Take a short walk to clear your mind of thoughts, worries and cares of the day. This is imperative. Random thoughts will prevent you from getting in touch with your genie. If you find it hard to clear your mind, practice for several days.

2. Once you are able to clear your mind, return home and find a comfortable chair or bed where you can relax in solitude. Close your eyes. Focus your mind on the life force that exists within you.

Repeat the word "genie" for several minutes. If you have prepared properly, you should receive a mental image of your personal genie. Warning: Your genie is unique. You must not discuss his looks or appearance with anyone!

3. When your genie appears do not attempt to wish for anything or communicate with him in any way. Wait until the genie asks to assist you. He may or may not address you during his first "visit." If not, open your eyes and end the session. Try again in a day or two.

4. When your genie asks to assist you, keep your eyes closed and make one, two or three wishes in a strong, clear voice. You don't have to make all your wishes at once. In fact, you can make your three wishes months, weeks or even years apart.

5. The wishes you make may or may not come true overnight. More often than not, you'll have to wait several weeks to see them come to pass. If that is the case, don't be discouraged. The genie within you grants all wishes. Sooner or later, you will get what you ask for.

Serena says: "Genies are a force for good in the world. Please use the power wisely."

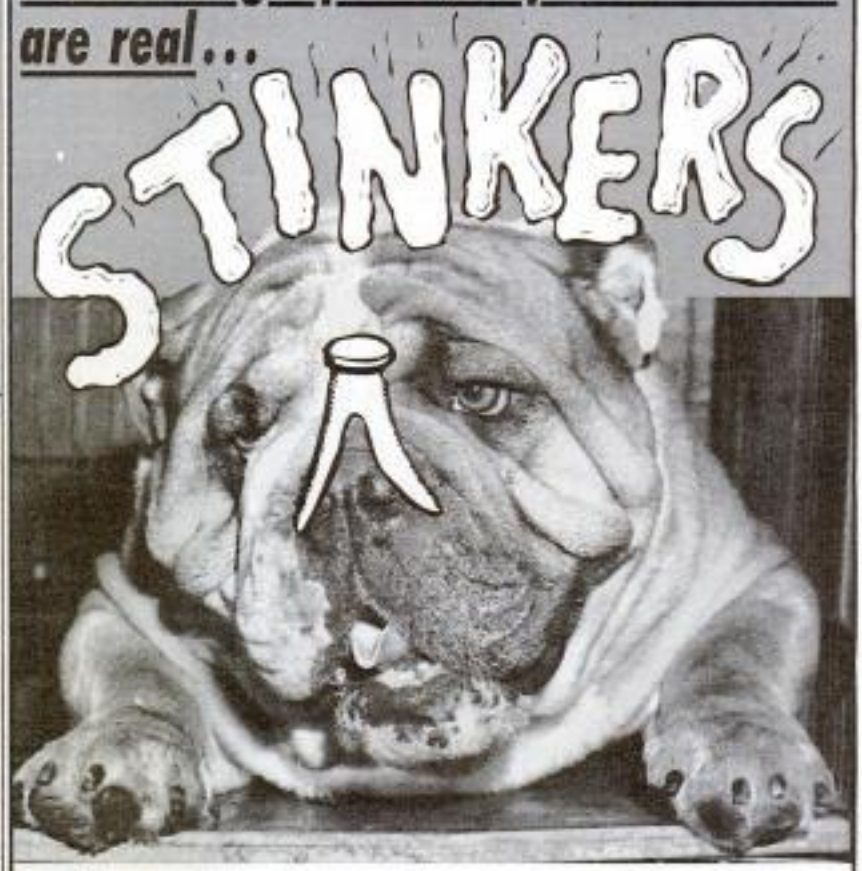
From a dog's point of 'phew' humans are real...



Dogs think humans stink!

That's the mind-blowing claim of Dr. Louis Kruger, who conducted an experiment in which trained dogs sniffed men and women of different nationalities and then pointed out the animals they smelled like in a city zoo.

The expert said the dogs showed that they could distinguish between nationalities as easily as a man can tell the difference in the aromas of roast beef and gasoline.

By KEN BASSETT
Correspondent

The dogs also made it clear that they think all humans smell awful — even when freshly bathed.

"The findings aren't especially flattering to people but they accurately reflect what dogs think of us," Dr. Kruger told reporters in Brussels, Belgium.

"There have been so many studies done on what people think about canines that I thought it was time to do a study on what dogs think about us," he continued.

"The dogs we used were specially trained for their ex-came from 10 different countries. All bathed in a special unscented soap before the experiment began."

Here are the 10 human groups that were included in Dr. Kruger's study group, followed by the animals they smelled like from the perspective of dogs:

- Americans — buffalo.
- Germans — warthogs.
- English — grass snakes.
- French — llamas.
- Arabs — Indian elephants. (In this particular case camels came in a close second.)
- Greeks — African elephants.
- Russians — hippos.
- Chinese — box turtles.
- Spanish — frogs.
- Swedes — chimps.

"This experiment certainly wasn't meant to make fun of any nationality.

"In fact, I don't think any one group came out better or worse than any other," said Dr. Kruger.

"Oddly enough, the dogs didn't match any of the people in our study with another dog.

"That is because they

Fisherman, 21, stabbed to death — by prehistoric needlefish!

As his panic-stricken father desperately struggled to help him, 21-year-old fisherman Mark Stover slowly bled to death — when he was stabbed through the neck by an enormous prehistoric needlefish!

Though he mustered every ounce of strength in his body, 62-year-old Carl Stover couldn't remove the monster's spearlike three-foot-long bill that had pierced his son's neck.

"My son died right in front of my eyes and I was helpless to save him," the grieving father said from the home he and Mark shared in the tiny fishing village of Puerto Velas, Costa Rica, where they have lived since leaving the U.S. in 1989.

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

"The fish's lower bill stabbed through his neck and the upper bill with all of its hooked teeth was clamped on his throat. Even if I'd had the strength to pull my son free, those teeth would have ripped his throat to ribbons."

The bizarre attack exploded with the suddenness of a lightning bolt as the two men were setting the nets of their 40-foot trawler Lisa some 20 miles off Costa Rica's Pacific coast.

Carl, who saw the 11-foot needlefish hit Mark, said he doesn't know if the attack was deliberate or a freak accident.

"There are large needlefish in these waters," he explained.

"When there are many baitfish near the surface, the needlefish charge them from below.

"When they break the surface, the needlefish sail through the air for many feet before they land back in the water. It's not uncommon for them to land in a boat.

"That may have been what happened in this case — a tragic accident. But that was no kind of needlefish I have ever seen or heard of before. It was a monster. It didn't even have scales. It had plates like steel armor.

"A man from the university in the capital said it may be a survivor from prehistoric times, like other fish that have been found in the ocean in the past few years."

Carl said the killer fish was taken to a research center in San Jose for further study.

"They had to cut its bill off to free my son," he added.

"The bill had not done any deadly damage, but the teeth in the upper jaw had ripped open my son's jugular vein.

"Even if I had managed to pull the bill from his throat, he would have bled to death anyway."

FISHERMAN Mark Stover, top, bled to death as his father Carl watched in horror.

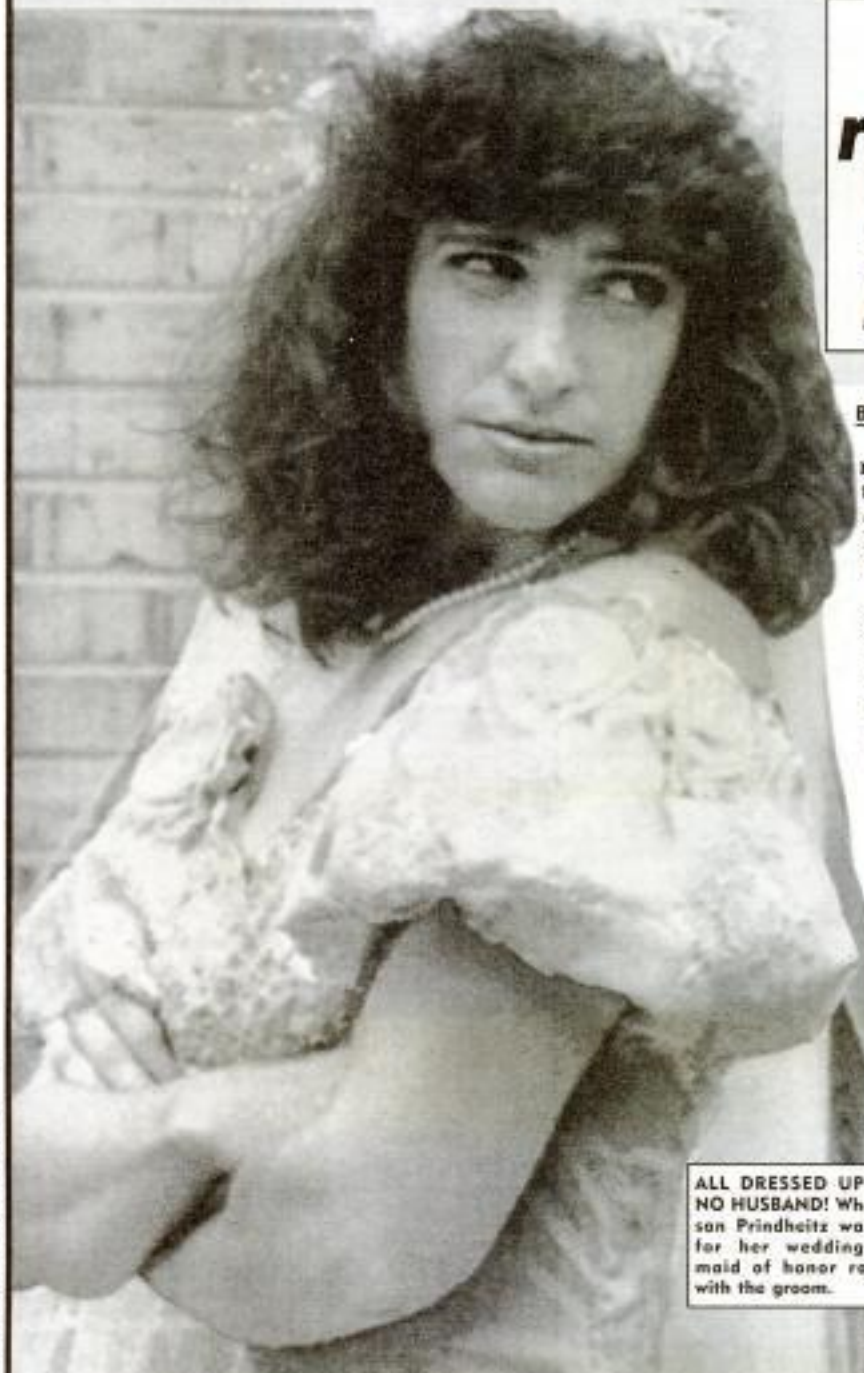
BRIDE IS 22 MINUTES LATE

A flat tire ruined my life, heartbroken beauty sobs!



ALL DRESSED UP AND NO HUSBAND! When Susan Prindheitz was late for her wedding, her maid of honor ran off with the groom.

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

Grumpy groom Billy Wredlem got so mad when his bride was late for the wedding that he went ahead with the ceremony without her — and tied the knot with the maid of honor instead!

The 26-year-old insurance salesman said his vows with pretty Angela LaSieto, 22, and took off with her for a two-week honeymoon.

And when bride Susan Prindheitz showed up at the wedding chapel everyone had left except the photographer.

"She was fit to be tied, poor thing," said photographer Thomas Kelstone, who snapped pictures as the bizarre drama unfolded. "She was wearing an expensive wedding dress, she was all ready to celebrate the event of her life — and her husband-to-be left her in the lurch.

"Not only that, it was her best friend who ended up being the bride."

Kelstone was contacted by the bride three weeks before the wedding disaster and asked to show up at the Rainbow Chapel outside Reno, Nev., for the marriage ceremony. He was told it would be a simple wedding with only the bride and groom, a best to the chapel and dutifully took pictures as the groom, best man and maid of honor arrived.

"We were all standing around waiting for the bride, who was supposed to arrive at 11 a.m.," Kelstone recalled. "The minister was there and we were all just waiting.

"Finally the groom just got so fed up that he turned to the maid of honor and said, 'Want to marry me instead?' I couldn't believe it when she said yes.

"The bride was just 22 minutes late and this guy decided to marry another woman. It was outrageous."

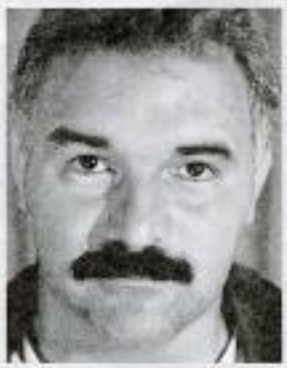
Incredibly, the best man and minister agreed to go along with the change of plans and Billy and Angela became husband and wife.

After the happy couple said their vows they left in a decorated wedding car, complete with tin cans and "Just Married" signs.

Kelstone said he was packing up his gear a few minutes after the wedding party left when flustered Susan Prindheitz showed up for the ceremony.

FOR HER WEDDING — SO GROOM MARRIES THE MAID OF HONOR!

SURPRISE COUPLE! Groom Billy Wredlem was so upset that his bride was late for their wedding he went ahead and married maid of honor Angela LaSicta.



PHOTOGRAPHER Thomas Kelstone took pictures of the whole ordeal.

Then I told her what happened.

"First I thought she was going to pass out. Then she just got furious and took off. She told me she was late because of a flat tire and then she stomped off without even paying me."

Attempts to reach Susan Prindheitz were unsuccessful, and the bride and groom are
